Princess.....Some Liar

It certainly looked like a real production at the Hipp last night with a double line of chorus girls all costumed to beat the band, and looking as charming as the Merry Widows. Cristie Matthews who has been ill, and out of the chorus for the past week, is back again, and Florence Russell and May Martin are new members, both clever little girls with experience, so they worked into the numbers pretty nicely. A real good house was present for the opening, and the night performance as well. "The Man from Wall Street" was the title of the bill. Dick Butler was the man from Wall Street, and was a good rich banker after a nice little girl, Vi Shaffer, for a wife, at the suggestion of the girl's father, whose part was well taken by Billy Malone. Lew Mack, as the sweetheart, planned a husband for the nervous aunt, and shooed the rich banker into the wedding noose, winning the hand of the girl he loved. There are plenty of funny situations in the story all of which are used to good advantage by the company. Vi Shaffer and Marie Kruger were the recipients of pretty tokens from the audience last night. Vi getting a beautiful bouquet, and Marie getting a fine box of chocolates. But, Oh, Marie, beware of candy, it makes one fat. Jacques Wilson is more and more attaching herself to the Hipp folks, not only for her clever work as singer and dancer, but she is a charming young lady to meet. Marie Kruger has the best number since she has been with us, and she does it the best. Vi Shaffer, pretty, talented and with a keen grasp of the public taste is going strong with her jazz numbers all of which are new, and catchingy rendered. Lew Mack ought to have a better number than Yama Yama Girls which is good, but a little old in the setting of new things one sees in Billy's show. The words which are original with Lew as used last night however, make the number popular. Dick Butler is just as good in one character as another and when he steps out to sing "You Can't Be Too Sure About the Ladies" he got a good hand.

Tomorrow night there is going to be a lot of fun for it is the right set aside for amateurs. Several applicants have signified their intention of going after the prizes Manager Hendrick is offering, and there is going to be keen competition. The event takes place after the first show.

Drama Success Filmed.

Rose Stahl's greatest dramatic success, written by Charles Klein, was "Maggie Pepper," and it had its first presentation in December, 1911, at the Harris theatre, New York City. Undoubtedly one of the most successful stories ever staged, this play presents a remarkable human touch. A picture of the play starring Ethel Clayton, will be at the Nelson today.

There has probably been no play of recent years in which the element of heart interest has been so compelling as in this romance of a department store employee, for Maggie Pepper, head of the silk department, for fifteen years has had nothing but the commonplaces of business in her thoughts until suddenly she becomes obsessed with the desire to enter society. This she does with complete success and wins the admiration of a man who turns out to be the head of the firm, recently returned home from a long sojourn in Europe. He makes Maggie manager of the business, but the scandalous stalks about and to save the situation she resigns. Through many trying situations Maggie's love remains steadfast and ultimately triumphs.

The part of Maggie Pepper offers an ideal character. Miss Clayton, who is given a supporting cast of unusual excellence.

Serial and Comedy.

At the Princess today, the attraction is a five reel comedy featuring William Russell. It is light, airy little plot in which there isn't much in earnest, but lots for fun. The other attraction is the serial "The Tiger's Trail" with Ruth Roland showing the fifth episode.

Makes Big Hit at Dixie.

The Mary Pickford picture made quite a hit at the Dixie yesterday and Manager Linn is showing the same story again today. It is Mary's first production under the management of her mother, and those who saw it yesterday were well pleased with it.
